Mr. Carroll,

Earlier this morning I left a voice message at your office for you to call me about this matter.

Therefore I assume your below message is your response to my call.

This morning Brian told me that later this month, or early next month, he anticipates he will be able to answer to your question about the status of the dock. Brian told me that as soon as he receives the necessary findings from his contractor he will have either Gloria or myself advise you of his recommendation.

Mr. Werner:

I was hoping to get some sort of update or possible feedback from you all regarding the status of the dock site. I have been put under mounting pressure from the bank with their concerns on the project.

Any update or information on timing of outcomes would be greatly appreciated.

Regards,

Jonathan Carroll

Gloria:

Sorry to continue to harass you, but I was hoping you could give me a little insight to the timing of Brian Mueller's conclusions. I have been struggling with keeping things all together with the Bank, they have been getting a bit anxious as of lately.

Any form of update would be greatly appreciated.

Regards,

Jonathan Carroll
